The move from university into work is one of the biggest transitions anyone faces.

For neurodivergent students and graduates, it often comes with an extra layer of questions.

We are working with Bath Spa University Careers and Employability to deliver Steps Into Work, our NeuroPathways peer support group for students and recent graduates.

The programme runs online over six months. It is practical and strengths-based, built around the real challenges neurodivergent people face when entering work.

Each group member also receives six sessions of tailored one-to-one neurodiversity support.
